Today was Fun is proud to announce its latest arrival - a tea for Mothers-to-Be.

Gift stores are full of gifts for newborns, but what do you buy a friend when you discover she is pregnant? Apart from cards or flowers, there are very few gifts designed to celebrate the nine-month-long physical and emotional rollercoaster someone experiences during pregnancy.

Expectancy Tea asks such questions as “will they show up on time or keep you guessing? Will they sleep all day and punctuate the night? Will there be scribbles on the wall and macaroni on your floor? And what made them choose you from a million other mothers?”

Expectancy Tea is an organic herbal tisane blended from raspberry leaf and peppermint. It is widely believed, although not conclusively proven, that raspberry leaf can shorten labour and make the birth easier if taken throughout pregnancy.

Sharyn, the MD of Today was Fun tells us “a number of my friends have recently become pregnant. I am amazed and excited for them as I watch their bellies grow, and they share with me what it feels like to have a real living being grow and move about inside them. I wanted to create a tea for them that celebrates their journey through pregnancy and eases the discomfort in any way possible”

Expectancy Tea joins Happiness, Inspiration and Friendship Tea as part of the Tea and Philosophy range by Today was Fun. RRP £5.00
